Part of a number of structures built by the Wiggins family along Pineville Rd. The initials on the first datestone indicate that Benjamin Wiggins constructed the house on the property owned by his father Bezeleel Wiggins. Benjamin Wiggins did not actually receive the title to the land until the death of his father in 1794. Benjamin Wiggins was the inventor of the "Wiggins plow" which had a curved mould board. the plow proved successful at numerous agricultural exhibitions, outperforming typical straight mould board plows of the period. Although never patented, the plow was manufactured at the "Buckman Plow Manufactory" in the township.

 This stone bank barn was built in 2 sections. The westerly section of the barn was built in 1807 with yellow, brown and buff field stone with some red & blue shale. There are pronounced red sandstone quoins on all 4 corners. There is a wood frame vestibule on the western gable end, and a full height frame shed on the northerly facade. Upon the construction of the easterly section in 1835, the roof of the first section was raised to form a continuous ridgeline. The gable roof is covered in metal. The newer section of the barn was built in stone. it abuts the eastern end of the older section and therefore has quoins on the eastern end only. The northerly elevation has a frame, gable roof bridge house connecting the main barn to the earth bank.

This Greek revival house was on a large tract of land purchased by brothers Stacy & William Brown in 1840. The Brown's owned and built virtually the entire village of Brownsburg. This structure is on a tract that originally ran from River Rd. to the River which included a tavern. After William Brown's death, the property went to his brother Stacy Brown's son, William B. Brown. It remained in the Brown family, although not necessarily the Brown name, until the end of the 19th century.

 This house was built in several different sections, the tallest section is laid up with extremely long thin stones. One of these stones is marked "JP 1789" while another several feet above is another stone marked with "TB 1730." The "J.B." likely stands for Jonathan Paxson who purchased the property in 1786. Between 1723 & 1784, the property was owned by Timothy Smith, or his estate. In 1782, the Pennsylvania Gazette newspaper advertised a stone house and kitchen for sale. Timothy SMith was the sherriff of Bucks County in the second quarter of the 18th century. He was an important figure in The Walking Purchase of 1737 which opened up land to European settlement.
